

Reflections

Sunday, Monday & Tuesday, September 6-8, 2020

Congrats from Tom Pickens

I posted the latest batch of surveys to the Board's Slack channel. This note came in early Saturday morning.

"Great work on the online programs! The follow up surveys show excellent satisfaction! Great Job Team Monroe!"

Sunday Gathering of Outreach Trainers

I had the pleasure of kicking off the meeting with Outreach Trainers as they learn how to put the Excursion Workshop online. We have 38 trainers who have committed to doing this. We've learned a TON from putting the virtual retreats online and the Outreach Trainers are benefiting from this. There was a high degree of energy as they started their learning process. We've every right to be proud of this group and the work that Outreach Team and CJ, Tip and Ellen have put into their success.

Toward Tired

~Seth Godin

If this was a blog post about running, I'd definitely be teaching things that would make you tired. And if you want to learn anything about making a difference, being creative or leading, you should ask the person teaching to cover things that will make you afraid. Because just as you have to figure out where to put the tired when you run a marathon, you'll need to figure out where to put the fear when you do work that matters.

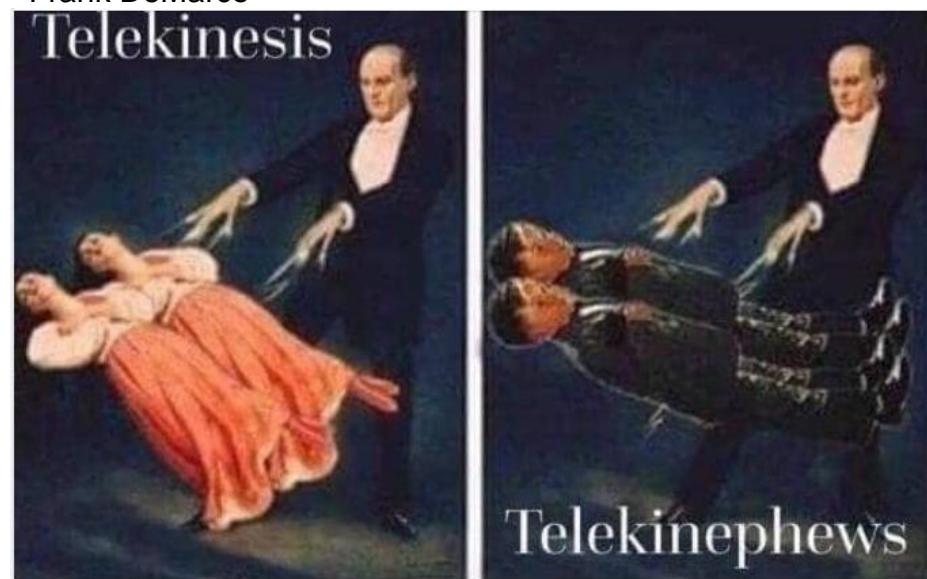

Dreams

~Christopher Reeve

At first dreams seem impossible, then improbable, then inevitable.

Smile

~Frank DeMarco

Looking forward to seeing you on Wednesday.

Scott